ROSS AN AQUATIC MARVEL

Greatest Middle Distance Swimmer in Annals of Sport Will Represent America.

The selection of Norman Ross, Lady Langer, George Cunha, John Hincks, Abel Siegel, V. Johnson, Sydney Biddell, Greff Allen, C. Montgomery and H. S. Stersach as representatives of the Amercan Army in the swimming events at the interallied games in Joinville-le-Pont, near Paris, June 22 to July 6, is gratifying from every point of view. It would be difficult to pick from the service a stronger combination, unless navy men were included, and the chosen-stars may be counted upon to figure prominently in every event on the programme. Norman Ross, formerly of San Francis-en, now attached to the Illinois A. C. of Chicago, stands out as one of the greatest of all around swimmers yet developed. A free style sprinter of championship calibre and deemed virtually invincible at all distances from the furious to the mile, he won the national 150 yard back stroke title in close to record time last month, and has also displayed excep-tionally good performances at the breast World's stantiards fall to his lot al-most every time he competes at the mid-dle distances, where he seems able to improve at will on his own best pre-vious feats. In 1918 he proved the leadring performer of the year, although he took part in only a few meets. Since his recent discharge from the Aviation Corps he has swept everything before him, capturing championships and shattering records. Only a few days ago he lowered his own mark for 200 yards in prod

One of Rose's assets, which will make him especially valuable in Paris, is a fund of endurance. It is a matter of history that he won ten prizes some time apo at a single carnival, although several Saturdays Sought by Loof the events required elimination trials. It is seldom that he is satisfied with only one race at any meet. He will be the mainstay of the American swimming

It is feared he may not be at his best, even if he is able to attend the fixture, which seems doubtful. Provided, however, he can make arrangements for the trip no worry need be felt concerning Ludy always keeps as fit as a fiddle, so it is an easy matter for him to regain his swimming speed at short notice. Last summer, for instance, he had a scant fortnight to prepare for the national $50 yard champlonship, yet he covered the course within one second of world's figures. Essentially a middle distance man. Langer does his finest work from 440 yards to one mile, and has repeatedly brought down international standards in his chosen field. He may be relied upon to give a good account of himself the best on hand.

For Seawanhaka Cup.

It is a good ten years since there has been a race for the Seawan-haka Cup. A challenge for the trophy would create great interest in Down East yachting circles. intelligence to feel out the others, to study their temperaments and to do his bidding in such a manner as to force

The idea of the committee was to find a boat with a large enough sail spread to be a good sailer and at the same time a safe enough craft for the younger generation. The principal reason for the promotion of the class was to encourage youngsters. Still a boat was wanted that would be large enough to sit five or six full sized adults without unnecessary crowding.

The committee decided that Mr Goeller's boat ideally filled the bill. A few changes were necessary on account of the shoals and flats of Jamaica Bay. The boat is a fast, sturdy little craft, cat rigged, 14 feet over all, by 614 feet beam, drawing 15 inches with board up beam, drawing 15 inches with board up and about 2½ feet with the board down. The class is being built by Rider & Suydam of Old Mill Creek. Fourteen have been ordered. Originally they were promised by June 15. Owing to wet weather, the class probably will not be delivered much before July 1.

Good Defensive Play

By R. F. FOSTER. Some interesting opinions have come to THE SUN with regard to the merits of the no trump double. Here is one from a correspondent who approaches ginning with the tops, the third round putting A in.

These leads force four discards from B and also from Z. It is easy for Z to let go all his diamonds. B can keep two diamonds and one spade, or the ace of diamonds and two spades, the double diamond discard being the better, as it leaves room for Z to make a mistake.

Now, if B has kept two spades A may lead a small one, and Z makes two tricks by winning with the ace and leading the jack, so that A loses the seven. The same result if B has kept only one spade and two diamonds. But if A leads the king of spades when B holds two spades, Z must let the king win, or the Deschapelles coup will win a trick for A and B. or the no trump double. Here is one from a correspondent who approaches the subject from a new angle:

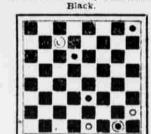

"In my opinion the no trump double is best employed as a defensive measure—not for attack. It is seidom that a hand is held which justifies the double as an offensive measure, which means a game count between the two hands, so seidom in fact that I thoroughly agree with The Sun that it is usually much the best to sit tight and defeat or at least hold down the declarer. However, we all know that the great majority of no trumpers are bid on miner suits, so if I hold either three or four of the two major suits with fair tops, particularly on the rubber game. I have found that a double usually drives the original declarer into a minor suit, thereby preventing a possible game at no trump. It is a safe play, whether the double is made either second or fourth hand, because either the declarer or his partner will, as a rule, continue to bid, being driven to two no trumps if they think they have the take out mit properly stopped, or to one of the three other suits, most

SCHOOL FOR CARD PLAYERS.

All depends on whether the games are teen cards of the minor suits, with seven honors, between them. As originally played there was quite a variation in the scores made, but no one doubled Z's no trumper on A's cards. At most of the tables the dealer seems to have started with no trump, at some with a club.

cards and simple honors.

Some of those who played the hand at no trumps were set 50. One table made the odd trick through A's opening the ace of spades instead of the jack or ten. At one table Z made two by cards, as A opened with a small heart.

H. A. P. says: The dealer holds six spades to the jack ten; five small hearts and two small singletons, on which he bids one spade. Second hand doubled, the fourth hand went no trump and made a little siam. On what authority is this an original spade bids.

Had any one doubled on A's cards, on the theory that most no trumpers are built on minor suits, and the dealer might be driven into one of them. On what a Some players imagine that six trumps and a singleton is a stronger hand than five trumps without the singleton, and consequently they bid on any six cards the dealer. He will have to go to two with a singleton. Of course the bid is diamonds.

Now the dealers will pass, and Y will seldom then, with only jack bighunsound, except as a secondary bid and double, to show he can stop the diamonds twice, if his partner wishes to pursue the no trumper. There are players bad enough to go two no trumps under such circumstances; but among first class players there is no such bid spade. This is stated to be excellent as assisting the partner's no trumper unless you have a no trumper yourself.

In spite of Y's hint, Z must realize that game is impossible if A has a sound double, as A lies over him. On the doubled diamond contract B will be set for 200 and simple honors. If A tries to pull himself out of the double with a heart he will be doubled and set 100 but will score simple honors. If he tries the spade, the higher ranking suit

tries the spade, the higher ranking suit.

There is no fault to be found with the will be set 200. If he goes to hearts to get out of the spade double he will bid. The mistake is in not taking it out with two hearts when A passes. The third hand cannot have held more than two clubs, and even with four hearts to the jack against it on the left, it is a game hand in hearts, as the opening required a peculiar combination of un-blocking tactics and forced discards for its solution. Here is the distribution:

I. C. D. says: A bids out of turn im-mediately after the last card is dealt Y bets he can ask for a new deal; but A insists that all he can do is to accept the bid or cancel it. What is the rule This happens very often in our little
